

Anastasia Kalantzi-Azizi, Diana Charila

The Laboratory of Psychological Student Counseling has been operating since 1991 but since 2002 it has taken the present form. The Laboratory has various actions such as individual counseling, group counseling, web counseling, peer counseling, as well as research and training of post-graduate clinical psychology students on counseling. Statistics will be presented from these different actions.

One of the future aims of the Laboratory is the promotion of common actions along with other Counseling Centers in our country. These actions can include the institutionalization of relevant services and the development of working groups with common research and intervention interests such as the establishment of a working group on the psychological counseling of students in the context of the Counseling Division of the Hellenic Psychological Association.

In the end, additional actions will be discussed such as the enhancement of research in collaboration with the Psychology Departments, as well a collaboration on a European level.